Ownership and Financing

The Published Reporter says on its Terms of Service page that it is funded by Searchen Networks, an internet marketing company that resells domain names. Searchen is owned by a privately held, West Palm Beach, Florida-based company named Internet Marketing Services Inc.

John Colascione is identified in the Terms of Service page as The Published Reporter's "Publisher." He told NewsGuard in an October 2020 email that he is the founder, owner, and CEO of Internet Marking Services Inc., as well as of Searchen Networks. Colascione said that he once owned the now-defunct news websites LongIsland.com and NorthDakota.com.

The Published Reporter runs advertisements, solicits donations, and sells merchandise.

Content

The Published Reporter's About Us page says that the website "focuses primarily on news and current issues related to the United States with a local focus on South Florida, incorporating Palm Beach, Broward, and Miami Dade Counties, the region where its headquarters are based."

The website publishes local crime stories and other general news affecting South Florida, as well as national news, which includes political, health, and opinion columns. The website's political articles generally advocate conservative views and have supported U.S. President Donald Trump's administration.

Typical local news headlines have included "Pedestrian Killed In West Park Crash; Driver Remained On Scene, Cooperating With Investigators," "Hospice: Sounding The Alarm On Mass Stealth Euthanasia," and "Sheriff

Launches New ‘Homeward Bound’ Program In Flagler County Jail To Help Inmates Learn Practical, Technical Job Skills, Prepare For Reentry.”

Typical political coverage includes stories such as “The Truth About The CIA, Hillary, Biden, Obama And Seal Team Six Coming, Says Group Of CIA And Benghazi Whistleblowers, Next News Network,” “Op-Ed: Biden’s Covert Conversion to Socialism,” and “The Two Biggest Cons In Town: BLM And Antifa.”

The Published Reporter also republishes labeled press releases from groups including the FBI, the World Health Organization, and insurance company GEICO. Site owner Colascione told NewsGuard in an October 2020 email: “If they are interesting, include quality imagery, are primarily related to the State of Florida, or from federal, state, local authorities, etc., we publish them.” He said some press releases may be lightly edited. “Our goal is to provide a higher quality press release for free – better than anything that could even be paid for,” Colascione said.

The website’s contributing authors include Roger Stone, a Florida-based, former adviser to President Trump who was convicted in 2019 of obstructing a congressional probe into Russian interference in the 2016 presidential election. President Trump commuted Stone’s 40-month jail term in July 2020, days before his sentence was to begin. A biography for Stone, published on the site, says, “Stand with Roger by donating to his legal defense fund.”

Credibility

The website’s reporting on Florida news is produced by the Published Reporter’s staff and often relies on statements by local law enforcement officials. Some national news articles cite reliable outlets, such as Kaiser Health News and CNN.

The website publishes a page titled “Trusted News Sources,” saying, “The following list contains trusted news organizations in which The Published Reporter® will reference from time to time.” While the list features many reliable news organizations, such as the BBC, the Los Angeles Times, and the Wall Street Journal, it also includes websites that NewsGuard has found to repeatedly publish false or unsubstantiated claims, such as The Gateway Pundit, The Epoch Times, Breitbart, and American Thinker. Colascione removed the sites InfoWars and ZeroHedge, among others, from the list after NewsGuard's inquiries in October 2020.

An Editorial Policies page instructs site authors to "attribute all specific facts and quotes used in your story" and to not cite the publicly-editable encyclopedia Wikipedia. The site also features a Fact Checking Policy page, which states that "Reporters and contributors must verify the information they gather. Reporters conduct their own fact checking processes using their own judgment guided by their own ethics. However, articles which appear in The Published Reporter® are, in most cases, edited and thoroughly reviewed for their content, intent and statements including numerical or statistical information within reports."

Despite these policies, The Published Reporter has repeatedly published false information and conspiracy theories, including about COVID-19.

For example, the site promoted the "Plandemic" conspiracy theory, which makes multiple false claims about the COVID-19 virus, including that it was created in a lab. The website published the 25-minute Plandemic video documentary when the video was released in May 2020. In the video, which remained on the site as of NewsGuard's November 2020 review, molecular biologist and anti-vaccine activist Judy Mikovits said of the virus: "It's very clear, this virus was manipulated, this family of viruses was manipulated and studied in a laboratory where the animals were taken into the laboratory. And this is what was released, whether deliberate or not, that cannot be naturally occurring."

There is no evidence to support the claim that the virus was manipulated or that it is not "naturally occurring." A March 2020 study published in the journal Nature Medicine concluded that the virus "is not a laboratory construct or a purposefully manipulated virus." An earlier study, published in February 2020 in the journal

Nature, found that the COVID-19 virus is “96% percent identical at the whole-genome level to a bat coronavirus.”

In an April 2020 statement, the U.S. intelligence community said that it “concur[s] with the wide scientific consensus that the COVID-19 virus was not manmade or genetically modified.” It later said that the intelligence community “will continue to rigorously examine emerging information and intelligence to determine whether the outbreak began through contact with infected animals or if it was the result of an accident at a laboratory in Wuhan.”

In the same video, Mikovits said, “If you’ve ever had a flu vaccine, you were injected with coronaviruses.” In fact, there are no coronaviruses in a flu shot. According to the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, flu vaccines contain either an inactivated or partial influenza virus, which is in a separate family of viruses from coronaviruses.

Colascione, the site’s owner and publisher, said in an October 2020 email to NewsGuard that Published Reporter had bought ads on Facebook to promote “Plandemic,” confirming The Wall Street Journal’s June 2020 report that the site had paid to promote the film. “We pay to promote a large number of our stories, so there was really nothing out of the ordinary with that,” Colascione said.

After the “Plandemic” video was removed from Facebook and the platforms YouTube and Vimeo for promoting misinformation, PublishedReporter.com added a note below the video that noted that the platforms had removed it, but urged users to watch it. “Who gives Facebook the right to determine if the information is in-fact, inaccurate?” the May 2020 note said. “The video is being labeled as an outrageous conspiracy theory, so be prepared for ideas that will challenge your own conscience – then make up your own mind on whether it is part of some sort of a propaganda campaign to be simply dismissed as fiction, or something more.”

Colascione added to NewsGuard in his email, "I must stand by the heavily disclaimer labeled video."

The site has also published articles claiming that anti-malaria drug hydroxychloroquine is an effective COVID-19 treatment. For example, a June 2020 Published Reporter opinion article, titled "The Gates To Gehenna," claimed that "President Trump's treatment of hydroxychloroquine was ridiculed, but frontline physicians around the world contend their studies have shown it to be an 'astonishingly effective ... miracle drug!'"

There is no evidence that hydroxychloroquine is an effective treatment for COVID-19. In March 2020, a non-randomized clinical trial that involved 20 people, conducted by French researchers and published in the International Journal of Antimicrobial Agents, concluded that hydroxychloroquine "is significantly associated with viral load reduction/disappearance in COVID-19 patients." However, the journal's publisher, the International Society of Antimicrobial Chemotherapy (ISAC), released a statement in April 2020 saying that it had concluded that the French study "does not meet the Society's expected standard, especially relating to the lack of better explanations of the inclusion criteria and the triage of patients to ensure patient safety."

Larger and randomized clinical trials found that the drug did not provide beneficial effects to COVID-19 patients. In June 2020, United Kingdom researchers ended the use of hydroxychloroquine in a large trial, called the RECOVERY trial, that had involved 4,600 patients. "We have concluded that there is no beneficial effect of hydroxychloroquine in patients hospitalised with COVID-19," according to a statement by researchers Martin Landray and Peter Horby of the RECOVERY trial. The trial's results, published in the New England Journal of Medicine (NEJM) in October 2020, concluded that, "Among patients hospitalized with COVID-19, those who received hydroxychloroquine did not have a lower incidence of death at 28 days than those who received usual care."

Asked about The Published Reporter's claims about hydroxychloroquine, Colascione told NewsGuard, "This remains a highly contested issue, and in my opinion, is yet to be conclusive. The claim may not be that HCQ alone has any benefits for people who have contracted the Coronavirus - but the combination of three products - HCQ combined with Zinc and Azithromycin remains in official testing."

~~In April 2020, PublishedReporter.com republished a~~ video from YouTube.com that advanced the QAnon conspiracy theory, which has claimed that a cabal of global elites known as the "deep state" has been involved in global crimes -- claims that are based on the cryptic writings of an anonymous online poster who goes by "Q."

The video, titled "QAnon – We Are The Plan," made numerous unsubstantiated claims, saying that "criminals" had taken over business and political institutions around the world. "These criminals are also known as the deep state, or cabal, because of how they control things behind the scenes," the video's unnamed narrator said, while the video flashed images of leaders including former President George H.W. Bush, Pope Francis, former U.S. Secretary of Secretary of State Hillary Clinton and Queen Elizabeth II.

Once criminals are in power, the narrator said, criminals "could use the full weight of their executive power to commit much larger crimes and ensure they and their friends are enriched to the fullest extent possible."

Snopes and PolitiFact have fact-checked multiple claims that Q and QAnon believers have shared via platforms like 4chan and 8chan as well as on more mainstream sites such as Reddit, Facebook, YouTube and Twitter. The organizations found that the posts were not backed by documents or any reliable evidence, and predicted events that did not come to pass. The identity of "Q" remains unknown.

After NewsGuard inquired about the video in October 2020, Colascione said he had added the words "(Conspiracy Theory)" to the headline and added a note under the video that said, "The information contained in the video content posted represents the views and opinions of the original creators of such Video Content and does not necessarily represent the views or opinions of The Published Reporter.”

Colascione said that the site had added similar notes to text and video content that contained opinion. When NewsGuard noted that the website had nonetheless published false claims, even in content that was labeled as opinion, Colascione said, “I’m not certain if the publisher should become the judge jury and executioner on what an ‘opinion’ article writer has the right to say in their article if they believe it to be true and accurate even if there is open dialog on the merit and facts of the opinion. ... But ensuring the article is properly labeled as opinion, something that is done above and below the article's content, should relieve me of an incorrect fact, if one exists, within an article that is clearly and properly disclaimer and labeled as opinion.”

In November 2020, following the Nov. 3, 2020, U.S. presidential election, the website made unsubstantiated claims that “massive election fraud” had caused media organizations to declare the U.S. presidential election as a victory for Democratic nominee Joe Biden over President Trump. The Nov. 8, 2020, article, titled “Op-Ed: The Democrats’ Coup 3.0 Is As Unprecedented As The Response To This Year’s Flu; Final Election Tally Still Awaits Certification,” claimed that Democrats’ “election fraud is blatantly obvious and would be easy to expose and counter, were it not for the media’s collusion. Tens of thousands of ballots mysteriously appearing at 4am, nearly all for Biden, overtaking Trump’s dramatic lead in multiple swing states?” The article also asserted that “the Dems and the enormously powerful globalist/Marxist cabal behind them, are trying to overturn the election that Trump clearly won. This time, they’re seeking to oust him not by cooking up more phony scandals, but through massive election fraud.”

No evidence has emerged of widespread voter fraud in the 2020 U.S. presidential election. As the Financial Times reported in November 2020, “There has not been evidence of significant voter fraud in this year's election or to support Mr Trump's allegations of a conspiracy to determine the result."

There are multiple reasons that Biden's lead in several U.S. states became apparent only later in the vote count after the Nov. 3, 2020, election. Elections officials said that many more voters cast mail-in or absentee ballots, in part because of voters' concerns about casting ballots in person during the COVID-19 pandemic. State officials had said before Election Day that they had expected the counting of ballots to extend beyond that day. Vote counts in many states were continuing on Nov. 10, 2020, one week after the election.

Asked about the claims in this story in a November 2020 email, Colascione responded by linking to a tweet by Fox Business News anchor Maria Bartiromo, which Twitter had placed a warning label on saying that the tweet's claims were disputed. Colascione continued, "Personally, I think there is probably some evidence out there as far as widespread voter fraud, but even if there is not, I am pretty sure that this is because we never before mailed every registered voter a ballot automatically. They had to be requested and I am pretty sure you had to have a reason. For the first time, there are ballots being sent everywhere automatically and people steal them."

While some states do regularly send mail-in ballots to voters, the practice is not the same in every state, and the practice did not begin "for the first time" this year, as Colascione said.

Because The Published Reporter has repeatedly published false claims and conspiracy theories, NewsGuard has determined that the site publishes false information and that it does not gather and present information responsibly.

However, because the opinion articles and videos that make false claims do not generally repeat those claims in headlines, NewsGuard has determined that the website does not fail to meet its standard for avoiding deceptive headlines. For example, the video that advances the false QAnon claims is titled “QAnon – We Are The Plan (Conspiracy Theory).”

The site does not articulate a corrections policy. NewsGuard found that the website had published several corrections since it launched in 2019, and added two editor’s notes in October 2020 to a story that made misleading claims about vaccines after NewsGuard asked about it.

However, because the website has not issued corrections to multiple other false claims on the website, including its content about voting, COVID-19, and QAnon, NewsGuard has determined that the website does not meet NewsGuard’s standard for having effective corrections practices.

Asked about the website’s corrections practices and its failure to correct false claims, Colascione wrote that the site had corrected the article about vaccines. He did not elaborate on the lack of corrections for other content, other than saying that labeling content as opinion should serve to “relieve me of an incorrect fact, if one exists.”

The Published Reporter’s news coverage generally does not include opinionated language. While the website does not disclose an overall point of view, its political content advocates conservative, pro-Trump views. However, NewsGuard found that most of this content is labeled opinion, which is why NewsGuard has determined that the website does not handle the difference between news and opinion irresponsibly.

Transparency

The Published Reporter’s About Us page states that “Financial support for The Published Reporter® is made possible by the publisher,” and links to the site’s Terms of Service section, which discloses ownership by Colascione and his company, Searchen Networks.

The About Us and Contact Us pages identify The Published Reporter’s editors, including Colascione, and provide a contact email address, phone number, and mailing address for the website.

An Our Contributors page identifies contributing authors, along with their biographies and contact information. Articles are typically attributed to authors.

Advertisements are generally distinguished from editorial content. The website prominently publishes a disclosure on its homepage that says the website may earn revenue from links that “could result in payment to, or a commission being earned by The Published Reporter.”

History

The Published Reporter launched in January 2019. Colascione told NewsGuard in an October 2020 email that he created the site following the sale of LongIsland.com, which he had run since 2002.

Although the new site focused on Florida, “this time, I would not lock myself into a particular region so that I would have the ability to grow if I so decided to,” he said.

Asked about his choice of name for the site, Colascione told NewsGuard, “I think I thought to myself, ‘You Too Could Be A Published Reporter’ and that was kind of like how the name came about. I get a lot of compliments on the name nowadays.”
